I spent my time as a violinist under lockdown practising, having online classes with my teacher, being with my family, boyfriend, meditating, doing yoga, watching good films and talking walks.

How do You appreciate the value of music and personal development in our society?

I think music is very important and our society would not exist without it. It connects you with others, gives you many ranges of feelings and can heal you too. Personal development is also important for each of us, to make ourselves better for us alone and others, than the society in general. This project also helps in that way.

Do we need a new social awareness after the Covid-19 pandemic?

I think awareness of society at whole will increase during these Pandemic, we should use it in that way. So, fear go away! :)
